

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

From: Suzanne Schellenberg

Invisible Man Marketing & Promotion

PO Box 940436

Simi Valley, CA 93094

suzinsf@earthlink.net

<http://invisiblemanmarketingandpromotion.com/>

November 16th. 2004

Keeping The Invisible Man visible:

Invisible Man Marketing & Promotion hosts a featured fan table at Galaxy Con.

The Invisible Man, one of Sci Fi Channel's Saturn Award-nominated original series which ran from 2000-2002 and was a top ratings-getter before its surprise cancellation in the midst of negotiations for not one, but two more seasons, had a visible presence at Galaxy Con this November.

The Invisible Man's fan table at the second annual Galaxy Con, a fledgling science fiction genre convention held the weekend of November 13-14, 2004 in Beltsville, MD, was once again a thorough success with sci fi con-goers and fans. Positioned prominently near the registration area, the table, sponsored by Invisible Man Marketing & Promotion, and manned by members of the Imaniacs, the unofficial fan club of The Invisible Man, featured information on all the latest strategies in the campaign to garner attention for the series. Current publicity efforts include petitions requesting the release of region 1 DVDs and a reunion feature film. Genre fans and fans of The Invisible Man stopped by to chat with fellow enthusiasts and sign the petitions, as well as enter the drawings for I-Man themed raffle prizes.

Among the visitors to the table were Richard Hatch (Battlestar Galactica) and Gigi Edgely (Farscape) who were happy to add their names to those requesting both the DVDs and a feature film. Several notable authors also signed the petitions and joined other fans in expressing their hope that the voices of fans around the world will be heard. In all, over 100 signatures were collected on each of the two petitions, copies of which will be sent to Matt Greenberg, creator of The Invisible Man, as well as Craig Silverstein, writer-producer for The Invisible Man, and currently producer of USA network's The Dead Zone.

In addition, copies are slated to go out to several other industry notables who have expressed interest in seeing the cast of the show reunited for a feature film. The Powers That Be at NBC Universal will also receive copies, to make them aware of the continuing fan interest in the show, and hopefully to encourage the resyndication of the series on one of the many cable channels in the NBC family.

About The Invisible Man

The Invisible Man -- one of the SciFi Channel's top 3 original series and consistently one of the top 10 genre shows in syndication -- premiered to critical acclaim in June 2000. It was abruptly cancelled after negotiations fell through for not one, but two more seasons in late September 2001.

During its run, the chemistry between the two lead actors, Vincent Ventresca and Paul Ben-Victor, garnered numerous accolades and the show drew critical acclaim, including several Saturn Award nominations for both its seasons and a best ensemble award from TV Zone magazine. Additionally, numerous episodes were included on The Futon Critic's list of the Top 50 Episodes of 2001 and 2002, and the show swept numerous categories in the fan-based voting for the 2002 Roswell Awards.

Created by talented Matt Greenberg (Reign of Fire), the show also created quite a buzz in the creative community, attracting such luminaries as: Armin Shimerman (Star Trek: Deep Space Nine, Buffy the Vampire Slayer), Craig Silverstein (creative consultant, producer, The Dead Zone), George Huang (director of Swimming with Sharks), Greg Yaitanes (director of episodes of Las Vegas, Cold Case), Justine Miceli (NYPD Blue), Joel Bissonette (Boulevard, Fight Club), David Burke (Joan of Arcadia), Michael Welch (Joan of Arcadia, Star Trek: Insurrection) and Adam Storke (Mystic Pizza, Prey).

For more information on The Invisible Man, the Virtual Season, or the campaign to renew the show, please email <http://www.invisiblemanmarketingandpromotion.com/> For in-person contacts, please call:

Suzanne Schellenberg: Virtual Season & IMMP co-founder: 415 668-7607

Kathleen Finn, Treasurer, IMMP: 805 523-7310

URLs for your reference:

Message boards:

Invisible Man Marketing & Promotion: <http://p219.ezboard.com/bimmp88046>

I-Maniacs.org: pub63.ezboard.com/bImaniacs

Perseusproject.com: www.perseusproject.com/MB/mb.html

Official SciFi board: www.scifi.com/invisibleman

Sites devoted to the show and campaigning for season three, region 1 DVDs and resyndication:

Invisible Man Marketing & Promotion: <http://www.invisiblemanmarketingandpromotion.com/>

Operation: Visible Ink: <http://visible-ink.net>

I-Maniacs Fan Club: www.Imaniacs.org

perseusproject.com: www.perseusproject.com/FAQ/Dispatch_Index/I-ManPassion/i-manpassion.html
and http://www.perseusproject.com/Standing_Ovation/standing_ovation.html